Katherine holds both a Bachelor and Master of Laws from the University of Sydney and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of New South Wales.

Katherine was admitted as a solicitor in 2011 and commenced her career practising principally in the area of aviation insurance.

Katherine has also worked within the claims team for a global London-based insurer, managing professional indemnity and medical malpractice claims. During this time, Katherine gained exposure to the Lloyds market and worked closely with co-insurers on complex matters.

In addition, Katherine has experience in the conduct of litigation in many jurisdictions across Australia, including involvement in class actions.

Katherine's expertise includes:

- professional indemnity
- medical malpractice
- general liability
- aviation
- commercial litigation

Katherine is currently on the National Committee of the Australian Professional Indemnity Group and is a member of the New South Wales Law Society and the Association of Women in Insurance.
